

Halliwick Association of Swimming Therapy

Guidelines on the Use of Copyright ©

All Halliwick Association of Swimming Therapy (Halliwick AST) materials should be marked noting that copyright belongs to the Association.

Halliwick AST wants to ensure that the message conveyed about the Halliwick Concept is consistent and is not delivered by those who are not considered to have the appropriate skills and training. Additionally, the Association does not want people outside Halliwick AST to commercially exploit the expertise and time freely given by volunteers within Halliwick AST and seeks to avoid this happening.

The basic copyright notice is:

“Copyright, Halliwick Association of Swimming Therapy.”

The use of the © symbol is optional.

When known, the year of creation of the document should be added and it must be added whenever a new document is first created. If any material is altered, updated etc., this should be shown by a range of dates, for example:

© 1996, Halliwick Association of Swimming Therapy

or

© 1983-1996, Halliwick Association of Swimming Therapy

or

© Halliwick Association of Swimming Therapy. All rights reserved (1999 revised 2011)

or

© 1983-1996, Halliwick Association of Swimming Therapy. All rights reserved.

The change of name of the Association to Halliwick Association of Swimming Therapy (Halliwick AST) has no effect on the issue. The Organisation is the same, just the name has changed. Thus, the copyright previously vested in the Association of Swimming Therapy (AST) now belongs to Halliwick AST.

The following may be added, where appropriate, to publications that are not being sold by Halliwick AST:

“This document may be freely redistributed for educational and non-profit purposes provided that it retains the copyright notice. As with all documents produced by the Halliwick AST, it is the result of expertise and time freely given. Please respect these efforts and leave this information intact.”
